Audition Sides

INT. ORNATE LIBRARY - DAY

THE ASTROLOGER sits at a table covered in mysterious instruments. She avidly reads a large star chart on the table, unaware of the world around her.

She startles and looks up.

ASTROLOGER

Oh, hello there. I didn't see you come in. Please, make yourself comfortable.

She glances over the star chart once more.

ASTROLOGER (CONT'D)

I've been reading over these Astrological charts. It's the Autumnal Equinox, my favorite season.

She smiles shyly.

ASTROLOGER (CONT'D)

I wanted to get an idea of what bountiful harvest is in store for me.

She stops and looks up as though someone is speaking. She hesitates, and then responds.

ASTROLOGER (CONT'D)

You'd like yours done too?

She takes a breath and continues.

ASTROLOGER (CONT'D)

Well, I think we can do that, but I have to warn you, when I start divining something comes over me. I don't know what it is, and I can never remember what I say. And it can sometimes lead to some tricky situations.

She sighs.

ASTROLOGER (CONT'D)

But it always seems to make sense to whoever I'm with so...shall we begin?
